

8 of 9

2006 Tundra Squealing Noise by [REDACTED]

Jan 09, 2008 (2:32 pm)

Reply

Total Posts: 1 Hi!

Member

Since: Our 2006 Tundra has had a serious issue with a squealing noise

Jan 09, 2008 from the frontend--I believe it is coming from the fan. We've taken it to the dealer 3 times to have it fixed and each time they replace a

"belt assembly", and it will fix the squeal noise for about 2 hours.

This has basically been doing this since we have bought it, and I am getting frustrated with it--since each time we've taken it back to be fixed...NADA. This truck literally has 11,000 miles on it and we never tow with it at all. We do live in North Dakota, so it is extremely cold, but it makes this noise in the summer as well.

Is anyone else having a really LOUD squeal coming from the front end, perhaps around the fan?

#9 of 9

Re: 2008 Tundra 5.7L Oil Requirements [REDACTED] by [REDACTED]

Jan 10, 2008 (4:47 am)

Total    Replying to: [REDACTED] (Dec 31, 2007 4:39 pm)

Posts: 4

An update from my initial post on the oil requirememts for the 2008

Member Tundra 5.7L engine. I contacted Toyota and was told 0W-20W

Since: synthetic oil was used at the factory and is the recommended oil. I will

Dec 31, be taking the e-mails to the dealer. They also stated if petroleum

2007 based oil is used you can't go back to synthetic. Also the stated oil requirements are right on the oil filler cap. And the service manager never heard of that requirement? I pulled up the 2007 owners manual and the same oil requirements were listed. What have they been putting in the 2007 5.7L's that they serviced? Ummm.

-
- 